New Look Demons Stay Hot | Data Breach | Smog Watch

Neon Demons Win

The Newly named NCU Neon Demons survived a triple double and 5 blocks from Semra Bouyingja to take down the Ducks 78-76 in Overtime. Freshman Point Guard Codi Afton scored 22 points, with 6 straight in overtime to help sink the Ducks.

Data Breach at Rocklin

Rocklin Augmentics announced a data breach from their Skeletal Enhancements Division. Arasaka has been accused of performing the breach, a claim they abjectly deny. The Tech Division of the NCPD is assisting Rocklin in the investigation.

Smog Watch

Stagnating winds tomorrow and Friday will increase the possibility of dangerous smog levels throughout the city. NC Health Officials recommend breathing masks, and advise checking your filters in the event of the smog.

Chaos in the Exec. Zone

An attempted robbery at the Vanette Suites led to a gunfight that left several dead along with numerous injuries. Three of the victims fell to their death from the sixth floor. One the the deceased was the suite owner, Kodai Khan, a Ziggurat Executive. “It was a nightmare”, Cynthia Weiss, a broker and party attendee that was a floor above during the incident. “I pay good eddy to live where these kinds of things don’t happen. Apparently nowhere is truly safe in Night City”. Numerous unconfirmed reports on the melee have led to lots of stories online, including unconfirmed reports a rogue group of investigators working for Kodai were involved, and that Kodai jumped from his patio. His fall was tragically caught on camera by the NCTA news crew. “I’ve been onsite for over a decade”, reporter Trish Darrance told us, “I’ve never seen someone die in front of me. I think I’m going to take a few days off”. NCPD is also investigating if this incident coincides with a fire off campus earlier where multiple casualties were also reported. “There is a lot of misinformation

Microplastics Decomposer Goes to Third Phase of Clinical Trial

Biotech start up VaDistal, a company with promising technology to break down microplastics in the human blood stream, will start the third phase of their clinical trail next week in Germany. The second phase showed great promise in the possibility of breaking up microplastics plaque in compromising angles in human veins, especially in spots further from the heart (Distal is the term for "away from the heart"). "This is exciting stuff", Company CEO Donghoon Lee told us, "Look out, Biotechnica, you might be writing a check with a lot of zeroes to obtain us". Studies on the effects of the VaDistal on the brain will also start in the trial. "We don't have a lot of data so far on this, but what we have seems to be lean to the effects on the brain are not negative, but may actually be positive", Lance added.

online", leading investigator Sargent Bertrand told us. "This is an ongoing investigation that we will work tirelessly to make sure all aspects of this case are unearthed. This is no simple robbery, that I can assure you".

Anyone with information on these events is urged to call the anonymous NCPD tip line.

Semra and local Student go viral

An unprompted moment between Oregon superstar Semra Buoyingja and a student while he was waiting to join the CTL Hoops Crew Pre Game Show went viral last night. "I was putting on my lapel mic, and some short girl tapped on my leg. She asked If I could help her see the crowd, so I just picked her up. I didn't see how cute she was until I saw the pic", Semra told the Hoops Crew at the end of his spot, the video had already gone viral by that time. Danger Gal no doubt enjoyed the viral moment, the short video and pic had over seven million views as of this morning. Danger Gal signed Semra this summer to an endorsement deal, and the charismatic big man seems to be pulling his weight, no pun intended.
